and buy gas." What a nice way to promote tourism!

Let's get to the facts. The issue is uninsured motorists. To get a license plate in this state you only have to know the name of a local agent. You may have to pay for insurance for only one month, then the rest of your life it's free.

In Massachusetts, you go to our agent first. He fills out a registry form certifying that you have purchased insurance for one year. Then you can get a plate. If you fail to pay or renew, your plate number goes to the registry and all police. Soon, you are off the road or in jail. Nice. That is the kind of plan we need here.

Your driving record should be the key to the cost. Any other method is wrong.

Senator Pace, you should investigate and find out what the rest of the country does.

The search began Saturday morning. Thacker said the recovery operation was not conducted earlier because the water is much deeper during the summer and it would have more chance for success by waiting until this time of year.

The body of a Kearns man, who drowned in Deer Creek Reservoir Sunday afternoon, a little less than a mile above the dam, was recovered by divers May 7, was recovered by divers and Wasatch County Search and Rescue volunteers. Two witnesses said it would have been 36-degree water, in swimming about 25 yards from shore, trying to recover a lure he had lost while fishing from the shore, when he called for help because of cramps, then went under-water. He apparently went straight after each sweep in a very system after each sweep in a very system. Cross said, "He was found directly below where he was last seen, in 82 feet of water," according to Jim Cross, Cross Marine Services, Orem, who directed the recovery effort.

Divers, who searched for the body of a fisherman who drowned in Deer Creek Reservoir last May, had to spend about an hour in this decompression chamber after each 40- to 50-minute shift in the water.
